

The Armenian American Medical Society is incredibly honored to acknowledge the esteemed Daniel Stamboulian, MD, at its 32nd Anniversary Gala, for his work as a noted infectious disease specialist. Dr. Stamboulian received his medical degree from the University of Buenos Aires in 1962. Upon completing his postdoctoral training in infectious diseases at the University of Southern California, he returned to Argentina where he helped improve access to healthcare, promote vaccinations, and train other doctors on the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of infectious diseases. In addition to his work in Argentina, he has been instrumental in improving the healthcare in Armenia through vaccination campaigns and training for healthcare professionals. Dr. Stamboulian is the founder of the Pan-American Association of Infectious Diseases (API), Foundation Center of Infectious Diseases Studies (FUNCEI),

Fighting Infectious Diseases in Emerging Countries (FIDEC), a non-profit organization based in the United States and co-founder of the Argentine Society of Infectious Diseases (SADI). Throughout his career, Dr. Stamboulian has received numerous awards for his medical and humanitarian contributions.

In addition, Dr. Stamboulian serves as Chairman of the 12th Armenian Medical World Congress, which will be held in Buenos Aires, this May. The theme is, The Challenge to Innovate, Integrate and Promote Health. Under the leadership and expertise of Dr. Samboulian, the Congress will bring healthcare professionals together allowing them to exchange their knowledge and expertise while sharing updated information, including the challenges facing healthcare in Armenia and Nagorno-Karabakh.
