

The Armenian American Medical Society is pleased to honor Bared Maronian, an award-winning Armenian-American documentary filmmaker, at its 32nd Anniversary Gala for his work to spread genocide awareness and prevention on a global level. His accolades include four regional Emmy Awards, as well as the 2016 Armin T. Wegner Humanitarian Award. Mr. Maronian's production credits include a large number of national, regional, and local television programs for the American PBS network, spanning more than twenty years. In 2006, Mr. Maronian founded the Armenoid Team, primarily producing Armenian-themed documentary films for international distribution. His critically acclaimed 2015 film, Orphans of the Genocide, garnered a world-wide audience through inclusion in more than 20 international film festivals; screenings at universities, museums, libraries, and other public venues; as well as broadcast on DIRECTV. Mr. Maronian's latest work, Women of 1915, documents the plight and survival of the Armenian women during the Genocide of 1915 and the non-Armenian women who flocked to the killing fields to rescue thousands of Armenian women and children, at great risk to their own lives. His recognition of the strength of these women is a fitting tribute to all women this Mother's Day. Mr. Maronian, who was born and raised in Beirut, Lebanon, resides in Coconut Creek, Florida with his wife Lina and daughter Kaliana.
