COURSE OVERVIEW

Infection Prevention is essential for the health and safety of patients and dental health professionals. In order to prevent the transmission of microorganisms and disease requires breaking the chain of infection. This entails performing a series of repeatable and sequential steps for effective infection prevention. The CDC recommendations on infection control for the dental setting include Standard Precautions that should be followed on a daily basis, and includes procedures to be performed at the beginning of the day, before and after treating each patient and at the end of the day. The objective of this course is to provide the dental healthcare professional with an overview of current infection prevention protocols that are required to break the chain of infection and prevent disease transmission.

Monica Monsanto is the West Clinical Educator for DENTSPLY SIRONA. Monica received a dental hygiene degree from Portland Community College, Bachelor of Science in Dental Hygiene from Eastern Washington University and PG Diploma of Dental Sciences from King's College London, UK. Monica has more than 35 years clinical experience in both periodontal and general practices and 18 years of academic experience. Monica's academic experience includes advanced instrumentation, community oral health and restorative functions. Monica's research "Oral Impacts on Daily Performances and Use of Dental Services in Schoolchildren" was published in the International Journal of Pediatric Dentistry. Monica's focus is to provide professionals with current concepts and evidence based research to assist in implementing effective and efficient evidence based treatment protocols in the clinical practice.
